

THE RECTORY OF COWDEN.

BY LELAND L. DUNCAN, F.S.A.

THE ADVOWSON.

IN the reign of Edward III. the advowson of Cowden was in the hands of Sir Hugh de Audley, and, as will be seen by the list of Rectors, he exercised the right of presentation on several occasions.

It is not quite clear how the advowson became the property of Sir Hugh, but it may have formed part of the possessions of the De Clares, and, like Tunbridge Castle and Manor, have come to him in right of his wife Margaret, daughter of Gilbert Clare, last Earl of Gloucester. The Priory at Tunbridge, in the church of which Sir Hugh was buried in 1347, was founded in the reign of Henry I. by Richard de Clare, Earl of Hertford, and dedicated in honour of St. Mary Magdalen; if therefore the advowson of Cowden formed part of their property we have a probable reason for the similar dedication of the parish church there.

Sir Hugh de Audley had but one child, Margaret, and she marrying Ralph de Stafford carried the castle of Tunbridge and other possessions, including the manor of Chipsted, the manor of Ockham, and the advowson of Cowden, into that family. (See John de Keylmarsh, Rector in 1333.)

Sir Ralph de Stafford was in 1351 created Earl of Stafford. Amongst many other military services he led the English van at Cressy, and he was one of the foundation Knights of the Garter. He died in 1372, having in 1349 presented John de Alshbawe to Cowden.

His grandson, Edmund, married Ann daughter of Thomas of Woodstock, Duke of Gloucester, and was killed in 1403 at the Battle of Shrewsbury, when he was succeeded as Earl of Stafford by his son Humphrey, who is the next Patron mentioned in the list, as presenting John Woderton to the benefice in 1427. In right of his mother he was considered Earl of Buckingham; in 1420 he was created Count of Perche in Normandy, and in 1444 was further advanced as Duke of Buckingham. (See Rectors John Cowper and John Turvey.) He was killed at Northampton in 1460, fighting for the Lancastrians. He married Ann daughter of Ralph Nevill, Earl of Westmoreland, and she in 1461 presented Thomas Kelbye to Cowden.

On 10 December 1515 this ill-fated family exercised their right in this Rectory for the last time, when Edward, third Duke of Buckingham, and great-grandson of the above, presented Richard Chapman. Five years later, in 1520, the Duke was charged with aspiring to the throne, and was tried and executed, all his estates being confiscated. The Crown presented the next two Rectors in 1542 and 1549. In the fourth year of Edward VI. the advowson was granted to Ralph Fane, according to Hasted, but it must have again come to the Crown on his attainder, and in 1566 Philip Harrison is stated to have been presented by John Thomas, gent.

Hasted also states that in the seventh year of James I. the advowson became the property of Sir Robert Sidney, afterwards Earl of Leicester, but there is some discrepancy in the date, as in 1598 Sir Robert Sidney had presented William Dixon, and it is probable that the Sidneys became patrons at the same time that Penshurst was conferred upon them. The advowson remained in the hands of the Sidneys until the death of the last Earl of Leicester in 1742, when it was vested in Sir Brownlow Sherard and William Perry, Esq., but finally came to Sir Brownlow Sherard, whose widow bequeathed it to Anne widow of Sir William Yonge, K.B. In 1770 it was sold to Thomas Harvey of Tunbridge, Esq., and has since remained in that family.

EDWARD HARBY, LL.B., instituted 5 Feb. 1732 on the cession of William Egerton. Patron: John, Earl of Leicester. (Reg. Jo. Wilcox Epi.) He graduated LL.B. 1724, Peterhouse College, Cambridge. He was Chaplain to the Tower of London April 1737. His wife Ann died in 1752, and in Cowden Church is a gravestone to her with this inscription:

"To the memory of Ann Harby, wife of Edward Harby, LL.B., Rector of this Parish. She died May the 3rd, 1752, in the year of her age 64. A woman whose vertues were so many and amiable as ever made her respected, esteemed, and beloved. She was always agreeable to her acquaintance, sincere to her friends, affectionate to her relations, endearing to her husband, and obedient to her Creator. A life so blameless and irreproachable, so full of true piety and benevolence, all should imitate, few can equal, none excell, which heaven hereafter will apply recompense.

"If buried worth can claim a sigh or tear,
Then, reader, may'st thou justly pay thine here."

Within the altar rails is another inscription:

"Here lyeth the body of Francis Harby late of Wapenham in the County of Northampton Esq. who died the 24th day of June 1734 aged 76 years." (Vide Thorpe's Reg. Roff.)

Mr. Harby died 22 May 1761, and was buried on the 27 May at Cowden.
