C1-4: BEAD-RIMS WITH PROMINENT INTERNAL RIM THICKENING

Not always clearly distinguishable from C1-2, of which it is an exaggeration.

Notes
See notes to C1-2; the same comments on distribution and date apply here. In W Kent the exaggerated form continues to be used in grog-tempered 'Patch Grove ware' with buff surfaces for the second half of the 1st century AD at least (Philp 1973, e.g. no. 188, West Wick ham; Oldbury report, Ward-Perkins 1944, fig. 14).
C1-4: bead-rims with prominent internal rim thickening.